EDITED BY MARTHA WESTOVER

The Bathing Suit

BY LILLIAN RUSSELL.

Copyright, 1914, by Lillian Russell. Bathing resorts present a conglomerate mass of humanity. There you see some of the most aristocratic citizens mingling with the most ignorant and vulgar. There is no class distinction when they don their bathing suits.

You will see the most prudish women, women who would die before exposing their limbs in a bathing suit, and you will see the most daring women, who will expose their entire person to the gaze of the onlooker.

There seems to be no apparent modesty in the makeup. Men seem to take themselves about with just as little in the way of bathing suits as a few allows. It is astonishing to see how they disregard appearances, they walk about the streets uncovered completely as though they were out to do some wonderful athletic feat, which generally ends in a little dip in the sea—a roll on the sand, and then a parade home again. On the beach there is absolutely no privacy—women and men dance music in wet, clinging bathing suits, about on the sand together in the most familiar manner, and walk back their domiciles arm in arm. Then, when their clothes are changed for the conventional dress of house or street, they are changed. Their good manners modestly return to them, and they become more deferential and respectful to one another.

The beauty who would not enter a swimming-room without having her hair fluffed in the latest fashion has no difficulty in standing through the sultry streets from the beach to her home in her wet hair hanging over her shoulders.

There is no question but the water has a wonderful power over people, they may gaze upon its ever-changing face, they may play about in it, and they may even go down to bathe in it. They may even go down to bathe in it. They may even go down to bathe in it.

Re. Your skin is oily; that is why powder will not stay on and your skin looks so shiny. Try rubbing on a little alcohol. This will relieve the condition. Bathe the face each day with cold water. Do not use creams. If you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope I shall send you a formula for an astringent, which will relieve the oiliness of the skin. Rub a little melted vaseline into the roots of the lashes. This will increase the growth and make no darker. Be careful that you do not get any of the vaseline into the eyes. Oil of any kind irritates the eyes.

Blossom. If you wish to reduce in weight, the first thing you should look to is your diet. Do not eat rich, greasy foods. Eat only boiled or roasted meats, no fat meat at all; no hot breads, no cake, drink cold water, not cold, but you may drink a little weak tea without cream or sugar. I cannot eat the entire dietary for reducing as it is too long, but I shall be glad to send it to you if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope. I will send you a bleach for your hair, which bleaches are injurious to the hair. I do not give formulas for bleaches as they are too long.

Cold cream should be used at night. Once a day is not too often to use it. When used at night it is used as a cleanser. Apply the cream, allow it to stay on the face for ten minutes, then take off with a soft cloth, and then the face with warm water and a soap. Rinse the face with cold water. For wrinkles around the eyes, use a good skin food. I am sure they can be easily removed this way. Send me a stamped, addressed envelope and I shall send you a formula for cold cream and skin food, with instructions for facial massage.

M. B. V. Here is a formula for an excellent massage cream: Melt together in a double boiler one-half ounce of white wax, one-half ounce spermaceti, one ounce of lanolin, two ounces of sweet almond oil, and one ounce of coconut oil. Take off the fire and beat until cold, adding little by little two ounces of orange flower oil, to which give a drop of tincture of benzoin has been added. Be sure to beat constantly until quite cold; beating is the secret of fine cream. This is the orange flower skin food and used most frequently by the French and Russian women. It will make the skin soft and smooth, and will eradicate wrinkles. It will feed the skin and make the neck and face more plump. I shall be glad to send you the lotion for removing freckles if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

WHAT THE BABIES ARE WEARING THESE DAYS

Color May Appear on the Dainty Christening Robe and Bonnet.

Baby now wears color on his christening cloak and bonnet. It seems that he, too, must submit to fashion's scorn for monotony, and to show his obedience to her passing whims displays upon a very pale straw yellow background a wreath of Watteau blue and pink flowers with a few green leaves here and there.

His senior in the nursery, a small boy of two, just excited to trousseau suits, signifies an appreciation for picturesque effects by wearing Oliver Twist's raiment, consisting of a pair of knickerbockers fastened on a blouse, the whole displaying a far more generous use of material than poor Oliver's scanty clothes did.

Did It Hide Her Skirt?

Many mothers, however, still prefer the belted tunic and knickerbockers of time-honored use, thinking that it suits the rotund figures of their young sons better than the new kind of dress. But there is a spice of novelty in the Oliver design which is of appealing force.

The shortened jacket, which displays the little frock beneath, is the sign that summer is nearly here for Miss Sweet and Seven, who throughout the cold months has worn a coat that reached to her knees, and in some cases, if the truth must be told, hid her skirt at all, but a pair of comfortable breeches to match the coat, a type of out-of-door suit athletic dainties appreciate greatly.

Coat, Shoes and Gloves.

Now she is given a coat amusingly like her mother's sports jacket, made of light wool or taffeta, drawn into a broad band at the hem and finished with a quite plain linen or pique collar. Her skirt is also drawn into a band at the hem, and is made of crepe, plain or patterned, or of any other material preferred for the purpose. There are many corsetry materials, and the new rough surfaced water and ripple designs are receiving much approval.

The little people are dressed English fashion, are given pale yellow gloves instead of the white ones of old, but black shoes are their portion, unless it is traditional in the individual nursery for brown ones to be worn until the age of seven, after which they are relegated to the country with black ones for city wear.

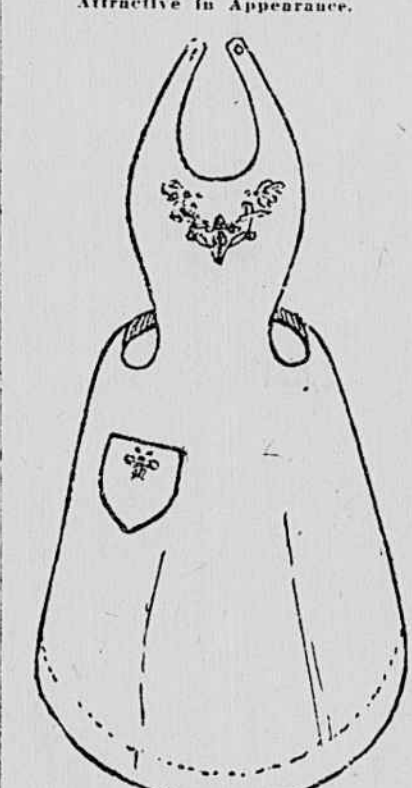

Desirable Fabric Hat.

For all small children the fabric hat is so comfortable that it obtains renewed success season after season. Charming, indeed, is the device of matching the hat and the frock, or part of it, and in this connection the fine white crepes with their blue or sprigs in primitive colors, are childish looking and suitable for girls of tender years.

There are also numbers of snuff-brown, gray and green crepes with fantastic patterns upon them, which make up well into bodices and tunics, to be worn with taffeta skirts and coats. Goggles are being used with crepe, and the ribbed aspect of the material is effective as a bordering on skirts and to make the collars and cuffs of blouses. Then it should be realized that pique most decidedly must not be left out of the program of this summer's nursery clothing. It is immensely fashionable, especially for such accessories as collars, cuffs and blouses, and later on will look fresh and dainty as a material for the fanciful summer jackets small girls wear.

A GARDENING APRON

Quickly and Easily Made and Very Attractive in Appearance.

These gardening aprons are quite new and are developed in colored lines of a rough weave. The embroidery is done in outline stitch in a rather coarse floss, in an appropriate design.

For instance, the one illustrated was of a gray-green linen, with the clover heads in a dull red, the leaves green, the stems black and the bees in orange and black. If one wishes to make the design still more effective, the petals of the clover blooms may be padded and worked solid and the stems may be worked in the French stem stitch, which is known to all embroiderers. These aprons are quickly and easily made, and are very artistic when carried out in an attractive color scheme.

Fourth of July. The following Thursday they were invited guests at an "at-home" given by Mrs. Page and her daughter, when they were seated to a number of interesting people. They were entertained at a dinner by Dr. and Mrs. A. C. Dixon at their hotel in London. While in Berlin they were invited to dinner in the home of Professor Brandt, one of the world's great scholars, and were shown through the departments of the university, showing special one, how a study of dialects is made by phonograph used by the students in country districts.

Professor Brandt presented Miss Hatcher with an autograph copy of the latest German book. Professor Brandt had previously published in one of his magazines some of Miss Hatcher's writings, so they were not strangers to each other. It was at his suggestion that Miss Hatcher entered on the work on Shakespeare, on which she is at present engaged in writing.
